ALDERSGATE GROUP: 2024 STRATEGY SNAPSHOT

The UK must decarbonise power to drive emissions reductions economy-wide, including in industry, buildings, and transport. Reducing energy use through efficiency will be vital in parallel.

A new UK industrial strategy is needed which includes a clear policy framework for decarbonising energy-intensive sectors as well as a cross-sectoral skills plan.

The planning system must be made fit for purpose to support cross-economy goals such as grid expansion, better homes and nature restoration.

Nature restoration needs higher profile and ambition, with the Environmental Improvement Plan needing further detail and implementation. Climate resilience and resource efficency must also be embedded across policy areas.

Cross-economy advocacy for ambitious climate and environmental policy
